

NATURE'S HUE

In the land before time,
where the wild things are, a being heard a hue.
The observer wore a mask so he decided who knew.
They call it labor.
Not for us, for them,
To us, it's effortless.
It's our nature to deliver,
Human nature, that's a purpose we want.
NO, we don't have to work because we are.
We don't have to work because it's OURS!
A son and a daughter, the sun and the moon.
The trees don't ask to grow and the flowers don't ask to bloom.
They are.
We call them dead when they wilt,
knowing a plant only dies when we label it.
The colors simply are, they don't disable it.
Different shapes and sizes.
It changes nothing.
We have the same fate; priceless.
We are one, people want us to look away.
People want us to separate.
They call this end times,
When you and I love who we want.
Why does it bother you so much?
My peace shouldn't make you mad.
My happiness should make you glad.
My smile should make you smile back.
Why are you so sad?
You're not less because I see you.
You're not inadequate because we're different.
You decided a label was better than you.
Nothing is above or below a HUE.
Exist to be.
If you don't like it, don't play the game.
You don't have to compete.
You have the wind on you, baby
When you're outside, you smell the air.
Some call it fresh air.
You don't see it but you know it's there.
They said the animals would attack.
First off, stop calling them animals,
they're hues and they know that.
Nothing attacks without motive.
Nothing aggresses without a reason.
If you feel animals will attack,

Stop treating them like animals.
Have you thought about that?
You take them from their home to a house
With no freedom.
With chains and cages.
You scream and shout,
Upset when they treat your house like a home.
Going as they please, when they please.
You call them bad and some hit them.
That's slavery!
You whip them.
Animals, Humans, Nature is the same.
We grow, we stay, we wilt, we decay, we change, we bloom, we flourish and remain. The cycle repeats.
One day, someone decided nature wasn't enough.
They didn't want to keep growing.
They wanted to die.
To stay the same forever.
A plant isn't dead if it keeps coming back.
Oh, that's the magic you said Jesus could enact?
We never die, that's a lie. A label.
You know what, a fable.
Our scripts are fables.
Choose not to create them.
Dismantle and dissolve labels.
They name everyone by a place,
a people, a region, and a culture.
Caucasian. Asian. Hispanic. Latino. African.
Islander. Indian. Native American.
They look at us and say Black.
Hmm, MOORS! How about that?
Why are we the only people reduced to a color?
Caucasian is treated as an identity,
although, they are called white.
Asian is treated as an identity, not a color.
Hispanic and Latino are used depending on which label someone prefers.
Islanders are given several names connected to different lands and cultures.
Africans are placed beneath one continental label,
and every person with dark skin is expected to accept it.
Then Black Americans are told that we are simply Black because the transatlantic slave trade erased our tribes, languages, names, and homelands.
We are told that, unlike immigrants who know exactly where they came from, we needed a shared cultural identity.
We are told that the names changed from colored,

to Negro, to Black, to African American as society evolved.
None of that tells us who we are.
Those are labels, fables, inventions, and man-made explanations placed over our existence.
Every name they use is man-made.
We are not Black. We simply are. We were not born from slavery.
We were always here.
That is why they tried to strip us of identity.
They renamed us, categorized us, reduced us to a color, then created a history explaining why we should accept the name they gave us.
Everyone else is offered a label that appears to connect them to a land, a culture, or a people.
We are offered a color and told it is enough.
It is not enough.
Which one should we choose?
Black? African American? African? Indigenous? Negro? Colored?
Hebrew? Egyptian? Aboriginal?
Descendant of enslaved people?
None of them.
I do not need to choose between names created by people who did not create me.
I am.
You can rename a people, divide them into categories, attach them to continents, colors, tribes, numbers, circles, or histories,
but the name does not become their essence.
